

Organic Products Guide

A Few Things to Make Life a Little Greener

+Writing | Hadley Henriette

Here's a field guide to some of the best earth-friendly products around. Trust us, we'd put them out in front even if this wasn't the Green Issue.

Eco Earrings

Here's a Miami-based company that takes their recycling seriously. Famous for their purses and bags that use wrappers, billboards and other stuff they're saving from landfills, these green recycled glass earrings are another way to be fashionable and earth-friendly. $40 www.ecoist.com

In the Bag

You know you should shop with reusable bags, so why the hell aren't you, b*tch? You can use just about any old bag you have lying around the house or you can have this statement maker. Sold locally at Crimson Carbon, a steal at $20.

524 Washington Avenue, Miami Beach

Spiritual Experience

Have you tried the hottest new superfoods açai, prickly pear and acerola cherry? If not, you'll get all those firsts down in one go when you taste VeeV, which has to be the healthiest and most ecologically friendly spirit. The carbon-neutral company uses a wind-powered distillery and gives $1 to rainforest preservation efforts for every bottle sold. No word yet on the hangover. $35 www.veevlife.com

A Natural Smoke

They don't call them Naked Papers just because they're clear. Well, maybe they do, but did you know they're also all natural? These rolling papers are made from eucalyptus-based cellulose, glycerin and water. That's it. No need for glue. Fans love that the papers come in five sizes and have no taste, allowing the flavor to be true. Best of all, you can see exactly what you're smoking. $3-$10

www.nakedpapers.com

